Election 2015

The Results and Tables

Compiled by Colin Rallings, Michael Thrasher & Galina Borisyuk

Foreword

Following the 2015 general election we decided that very few people would be interested in a book of the results similar to the one we produced for the previous election (Election 2010: The Official Results, London: Biteback Publishing 2011). Our reasoning lay in the "fact" that the date of the next general election was scheduled for May 2020 (as determined by the Fixed-term Parliaments Act 2011) and would follow a radical re-drawing of the parliamentary constituencies as the House of Commons was reduced from 650 to 600 seats. The events of April 18, when Theresa May announced, subject to a Parliamentary vote, the election for June 8th demonstrated how wrong we were.

Because the boundary review process is still on-going the 2017 election is being fought on the current constituency boundaries. A number of people (including ourselves as it happens) have stated that it would be useful to have a book of the 2015 election results. In fairness, there are quite a number of existing publications that list the results and multiple sources make the information electronically available, including the 'official results' pages on the Electoral Commission's website.

But what many people, so they tell us, find particularly useful in the 2010 volume are the Tables contained at the back which run to over a hundred pages and cover useful stuff like a rank order of seats by percentage marginality, turnout, winning party's vote share and most of all the lists of Target seats based on swing to win. Additionally, there is an index of candidates that stood, the party they stood for and the constituency they contested together with its PA (Press Association) number.

So, like much else about the 2017 general election, the book has been produced quickly. Although normal production values are suspended we are confident (should that be hopeful?) that the data are correct. Forensic election enthusiasts may find some minor differences between what is published elsewhere and our results, especially in the matter of electorates and turnout in 2015. This is largely because while the former take their results from organisations like the Press Association or the BBC which publish at the time we have the 'luxury' of taking longer to obtain more precise figures from the long-suffering Electoral Administrators. This is not to say that one set of figures is necessarily wrong and the other set is right – just different.

We realise that this is not a book as most people of our generation understand by that term and that in order to have 'hard copy' people will have to print it themselves but then we are making it freely available so it's best not to complain.

Introduction

Explanatory Notes

All constituencies in the United Kingdom are listed in alphabetical order following the practice of the Press Association and the major broadcasting organisations. Compass point references usually follow the substantive name. Thus Aberavon is number 1 and Yorkshire East number 650.

Under the name of each constituency are seven columns. In turn these are:

1. Electors	The number of electors eligible to vote on May 7th 2015.
2. Turnout	Valid votes cast expressed as a % of the eligible electorate.
3. Candidate	The surname and initials of the candidate. All women are listed as 'Ms.'; those candidates who were members of the 2010-15 Parliament are denoted by a *.
4. Party	The party affiliation of the candidate.
5. Vote	The number of votes polled by the candidate.
6. Share	The number of votes polled by the candidate expressed as a percentage of the total valid votes cast. A * indicates a forfeited deposit.
7. Change	The percentage change in the share of the vote for the party since the 2010 general election.

At the foot of each set of voting figures appears the majority of the successful candidate and this is also expressed as a percentage. (The rounding of percentages originally calculated to two decimal places sometimes results in the percentage majority figure differing by + or -0.1% from that obtained by subtracting the share of the first placed party from that of the second placed party). The party which won the seat at the 2010 general election is also noted.

Electorate Statistics

Under the terms of the Representation of the People Act 2000, a system of 'rolling registration' was introduced to allow eligible persons to register to vote at any time of the year. Subsequently, the 2006 Electoral Administration Act provided for electors to apply to be registered to vote up to 11 working days before polling day. These procedures have led to electoral registers being updated more frequently and to the numbers on the register at the time of an election differing from those both 'as first published' and when the election is called.

The constituency electorates used here are 'on the day' figures as supplied by Returning Officers and have not been subject to the formula used in previous volumes in the Britain Votes series to calculate the electorate on any given date. For an explanation of that formula see Colin Rallings and Michael Thrasher (eds), British Electoral Facts, 1832-2012 (Biteback, 2009).

Forfeited deposits

A candidate forfeited a deposit of £500 if s/he was not elected and did not poll more than one-twentieth of the valid votes cast.

General Election Polling Date

Polling took place on May 7th 2015.

Surnames and Initials

The surnames and initials of candidates are based on returns made to the authors on behalf of the Electoral Commission by Returning Officers. Only initials and titles which can be derived from these sources are listed.

Voting Statistics

The number of votes cast for candidates are based on returns made to the authors on behalf of the Electoral Commission by Returning Officers.
