We are grateful to the House of Commons Library for assisting with the results collection, a formidable task given the size and complexity of the task at the busiest point of the local electoral cycle. We acknowledge the amazing work of the Democracy Club with their initial assembly of candidate nominations and votes, a resource that is making electoral data more widely accessible.

Our thanks to Adam Gray, for his marvellous maps and data cross-checking, and to Ken Leadbeater whose incredible proof-reading skills, knowledge of incumbency and tireless pursuit of gender data are invaluable. Ken has also contributed material on mayoral elections for this Handbook.

As ever, we are indebted to our long-time collaborator, Galina Borisyuk, who writes each set of results to the database and does yet more cross-checking. She provides the vital tables that appear in both the Introduction and Appendices as well as those that are eventually posted on our website (https://www.electionscentre.co.uk/).

It is with great sadness that we report the untimely death of our long-term collaborator and friend, Dr. Lawrence Ware. He passed away in September, just days short of what would have been his 57th birthday. Whilst still an undergraduate, Lawrence approached us and offered his assistance on the local elections project. His timing was perfect. The University was about to abandon the database software and the main-frame computer that we had been using. Lawrence, who was a genius at writing software and building databases, set about building a completely new system to his own design, following lengthy conversations with us about the structure, content and sometimes just plain weird aspects of local elections. Once the new system was up and running he continued to tweak certain elements, helping us to deal with changes in local government structures, ward boundary changes, election timing and much else. Fortunately, Lawrence remained in Plymouth, first taking a Master's Degree and then researching his doctoral thesis, 'The development of Party Systems and the Determinants of Partisan Voting in English Local Government Elections, 1973-1998'. It was entirely appropriate that his ground-breaking thesis would draw heavily on the electoral data that he had been instrumental in organising. Other doctoral students that followed him owe much to his skills, as do the many other academics who have accessed the local election results lodged at the UK Data Archive. We collaborated on research publications, including one that established a method for more precisely calculating the best estimate for the number of ballot papers in wards electing more than one candidate (Electoral Studies, volume 25, issue 1, 2006). This took more account of the size of party slates than the 'top-vote' procedure and it appears in various of our Tables as 'weighted sum' but we refer to it simply as the 'Ware algorithm'. Although Lawrence eventually left the University he was always on hand to help out when new types of data became available or when unforeseen changes in local elections required a minor re-design. It is a fitting testimony to his formidable skills that the software that compiles this Handbook was written by Lawrence over three decades ago.

Introduction

Following losses of over a thousand council seats, the Conservatives now have fewer councillors than at any time since 1998. The party made a net loss of over fifty councils. Labour, which made a net gain of almost six hundred seats and 21 councils, has overtaken the Conservatives as the largest party of local government for the first time in twenty-one years (Table 1). Despite reaching this milestone, comparisons with the mid 1990s show the party remains a long way from the position in the mid-1990s when it was close to holding half of all seats and councils.

Labour's progress was again hampered by good results for the Liberal Democrats (+432 seats) and the Greens (+231). With three parties making significant seat gains as well as Independents and small local parties often successfully defending seats, the number of hung councils across Britain rose to 138, 37.4% of the total. This is the highest proportion since the major reorganisation of local government which celebrated its 50th anniversary with these elections.

Details from 2,900 wards with six million votes cast, were used as the basis for our estimate of the National Equivalent Vote (NEV) for The Sunday Times. This suggested that Labour was ahead on 36% (five points better than the estimate in 2019 at the same point in the local electoral cycle) with the Conservatives reduced to 29% (-2 points). The Liberal Democrats improved only marginally, from 17% to 18% while remaining parties were on 17% (-4 points). A House of Commons projection using the current constituency boundaries, showed Labour winning 298 seats, a gain of 98 MPs on the 2019 result but still 28 seats short of an overall majority.

With a quarter of the 230 English councils counting overnight, the overall trend quickly became apparent. Among the first declarations were three Conservative controlled authorities, Harlow, Brentwood and Tamworth. Labour missed a difficult target in the first but the remaining two fell to no overall control. Labour's vote rose by fifteen points in Tamworth where the party would enjoy a spectacular victory in a parliamentary by-election months later.

Later, Labour unsurprisingly gained Plymouth where tree-felling in the city centre had dominated election campaigning. The Conservative share fell by twelve points here but it was to fall further still in other authorities. Another city-based unitary, Stoke on Trent, moved into the Labour column a short while later. This was a different story with a collapse in vote for Independents the principal explanation. A similar story would be played out when Labour gained control in Middlesbrough.

During its campaign Labour featured Medway prominently. Inaugural elections for the newly-established authority were fought in 1997, simultaneously with Tony Blair's landslide general election win. While Labour won the local vote that year it fell two seats short of an overall majority. Prior to this year, the Conservatives had held the council for twenty years. By any measure, an ambitious Labour target but the party secured an easy win. The change in vote from 2019, however, is instructive. Labour's vote rose, as did that of both the Liberal Democrats and Greens. Even the Conservative share rise was positive. It was the disappearance of the former UKIP vote, and to a lesser extent that cast in favour of Independents, that accounts for the changing flow of support. A similar pattern occurred in Gravesham where both the Conservative and Labour vote rose by eleven points but in Canterbury there was a nine-point swing from Conservative to Labour. Kent would also see Labour gain 14 seats and majority control of Thanet, a council it last held in 2002.

Labour would gain other councils directly from the Conservatives. Medway would be joined by Dover, a council it had won only once before in 1995. There was an 11-point rise in vote as Labour successfully squeezed its competitors. Both Bracknell Forest and Swindon saw some dramatic switching of seat totals. In Bracknell Forest the Conservatives went from 37 to just 10 seats while Labour, which had just four seats on the previous council, moved to twenty-two seats. Although the swing in Swindon was less it still meant the council fell under Labour control for the first time this century.

Three remaining gains were all in the Midlands. Erewash, another council run by the Conservatives for the past twenty years, saw Labour win nine seats. Eleven gains brought Labour control of East Staffordshire. In the same county, Cannock Chase would see a fourteen-point increase in Labour's vote share. The former coalfield areas of Derbyshire and Nottinghamshire saw Labour register some impressive turnovers. In Amber Valley and North East Derbyshire it was the Conservatives who suffered; in Mansfield it was the Independents who collapsed. Labour now controls 11 of the 14 district councils in those two counties.

With almost all the overnight counting finished the Liberal Democrats took back control of Windsor & Maidenhead after losing it to the Conservatives in 2007. A swing of 15 percentage points was a clear demonstration of a successful targeting strategy. There are now just seven Conservative councillors here, less than half of its previous low point. The Liberal Democrats added to their overnight score with the addition of five more councils gained directly from the Conservatives. In the space of an hour Stratford on Avon, Dacorum and South Hams were all won with the party registering 15 gains in the former and nine each for the others. It is the first time since their establishment in the early 1970s that the party has had majority control in any of these councils.

Later results brought more success. West Berkshire fell back into Liberal Democrat hands after a twenty-one year absence with 13 gains. For Horsham the wait was even longer, twenty-five years, with the Conservatives losing 21 seats to a combination of the Liberal Democrats (a 12-point increased vote) and the Greens who won six seats.

This was the best local election performance by the Greens, making a net gain of over two hundred seats. Beforehand, Mid Suffolk was regarded as a possible Green win but few would forecast its scale. The Greens produced a 20-point rise in vote share, doubling their seats, , and now have a 14-seat majority. Suffolk generally moved in their direction, with the party making 12 gains in East Suffolk and a further six in Babergh although with much smaller increases in vote share. The party also made gains in Lewes and East Hertfordshire where they gained an astonishing 18 seats as environmental issues came to the fore. Nationally, the party now hold ten or more seats on twenty councils.

The real blemish, however, was in Brighton & Hove which reverted to Labour control following an 18-seat gain which included defeats for the Greens' council leader and deputy leader. There was an eleven-point swing here.

Although Independents and the smaller parties lost ground overall, there are some important exceptions. A combination of Boston Independents and others made inroads into the Conservatives who lost 12 seats. Castle Point, another Independent bastion, was strengthened further with seven gains from the Conservatives. Tandridge council now has Independents together with the Oxted & Limpsfield Residents Group occupying more than half the seats. The Ashfield Independents advanced still further, leaving the two main parties with just three seats between them.

It was not all doom and gloom for the Conservatives. One of the rare Conservative council gains was Wyre Forest. This marked the effective end of the Independent Kidderminster Hospital and Health Concern group which once briefly had a clear majority of council seats and managed to elect an MP at the 2001 and 2005 general elections. The only three Conservative-controlled metropolitan boroughs are in the West Midlands and the party held on comfortably in each case. Indeed, across Dudley, Solihull and Walsall they made a net gain of one seat. Labour's chance in Dudley may come next year when the Conservatives will have to defend their overwhelming 2021victory there.

Slough, which has issued a Section 114 notice, was using new ward boundaries to elect the whole council. The incumbent Labour administration lost 18 seats and council control with the Conservatives the principal beneficiaries. Torbay brought some welcome news for the Conservatives after they gained the four seats required to gain an overall majority.

There are some notable regional variations. Comparing voting with 2019 shows the Conservative vote fell on average by three percentage points across southern England and in the North West but there was a three-point increase in the North East. Some of the swing to Labour came at Conservative expense but much of it stemmed from voters deserting Independents of various types, particularly in the West Midlands with a region-wide six-point increase and a seven-point rise across Yorkshire & The Humber.

The Liberal Democrat figures, where the South West of England witnessed a five-point improvement are probably the most interesting of all. A modest overall increase in vote share as estimated by the NEV, nevertheless produced a significant increase in seats and councils. Such effective targeting will be a principal concern for the Conservatives.

Table 1 shows Labour overtaking the Conservatives as the largest party in local government. The Conservatives now have their smallest proportion of council seats this century. The Liberal Democrats increased their seat tally to just under three thousand seats. Comparison with the period 1995-1998, when the Conservatives lost ground to both Labour and the Liberal Democrats, is instructive. Poor local election results in both 1995 and 1996 saw the Conservatives reduced to an 18.7% share of council seats. Meanwhile, Labour's share climbed to 47.9% and the Liberal Democrats stood at 22.3%; combined these two parties held seven in ten of all seats. By contrast, Labour currently has a 34.9% share while the Democrats hold 16% - just over half the councillors. It is the increase in the proportion of seats held by Independents and small local parties in England, and the relative rise of the SNP and PC in Scotland and Wales, which accounts for the differences between the situation now and the last time the Conservatives endured a slump in local government representation.

Tables 3 & 4 contain summaries of votes, vote shares, party contestation, voter participation, the characteristics of candidates and the fate of incumbents seeking re-election.

It is highly unusual for Labour, at this point of the local electoral cycle, to out-poll the Conservatives, especially when the pattern of party competition showed Labour contesting 85% of the vacancies compared with 98% for the Conservatives. For all three of the leading parties the relationship between vote and seat shares is relatively close, with Labour and the Liberal Democrats showing modest advantages in terms of seats won overall.

Voting across the different types of local authority showed more variation. In the metropolitan boroughs Labour's 46% vote share saw the party win two in three seats. Their largest party advantage was less obvious among the unitary councils but even here a third of the votes translated into 41% of the seats.

The shire districts provide the clearest indication of Liberal Democrat and Green party strength. The Liberal Democrats almost matched Labour's total number of seats despite both a lower overall vote share and a lower frequency of contestation. The Green polled one in nine votes in both the metropolitan boroughs and the district councils but won just 4% of the seats in the former compared with 7% in the latter.

Reform UK contested 369 wards, often fielding one candidate in three-member wards, receiving fewer than fifty thousand votes overall and failing to win any seats. Ten times as many votes were cast for Independent candidates and with a range of smaller local-authority based smaller parties these attracted one in ten votes overall. Where such candidates contested they met with some success; one in eight seats fell to these groups.

Over eight thousand seats were contested by 25,697 candidates – an overall candidate/seat ratio of 3.2. In under six in ten wards, voters had a choice of candidates from Conservative, Labour and Liberal Democrats. Ballot papers across metropolitan councils show three-quarters of voters able to select from the main political parties but in the district council areas the figure falls to half. Looking at the competition for seats rather than wards reveals parties often fielding less than a full slate of candidates. Just over a third of seats in the shire district councils were contested by all three of the main parties.

Almost nine thousand women stood as candidates, over a third of the total, with a smaller percentage, 31.4% successful. Women fared best in metropolitan borough authorities, comprising 36% of the candidates but 42% of the elected. This latter figure is close to the 45% elected in the 2022 London borough elections and in large part reflects the Labour party's drive to recruit more women to winnable seats.

The vast majority of seats were contested with just 0.6% not requiring an election to determine the winner. The total eligible electorate was approximately 27.3 million with almost a third of those casting a ballot. 44% of all seats provided voters with a choice of candidates from the main parties. A further 28% featured Conservative versus Labour while battles between Conservative and Liberal Democrat figured in 12% of seat contests.

Given the absence of a reliable system for local authority reporting of electorates on the day, numbers of valid and invalid ballot papers, we provide a range of methods for estimating overall turnout, including that developed by Dr Lawrence Ware. The final figures range between 32.0 - 33.8%.

More than six thousand candidates were incumbents seeking re-election. Three in every four were successful with incumbents making up 58% of all councillors elected in 2023.

Mayoral Elections: Ken Leadbeater

There were four mayoral elections, last contested in 2019. All four incumbent mayors were seeking re-election, two were re-elected and two were defeated.

Since the first direct election of the Mayor of London in 2000, which was won by Ken Livingstone, there had been a total of 88 single authority mayoral elections (including 4 by-elections) up until 2023, all of them conducted under the supplementary vote system (SV).

- 31 elections were won outright after the first count, with the winner achieving more than 50% of the vote.
- 51 elections resulted in the leader after the first count gaining election on the second count.
- 6 elections saw the runner-up on the first count overtaking the leader to be elected on the second count.

In 2023, the Elections Act 2022 introduced first-past-the-post elections for all direct mayoral elections. The results are set out below. None of the contests in 2023 saw the winner achieving 50% of the vote, so all of them would have proceeded to a second count under the previous voting system.

It is very probable that under the previous supplementary vote system Bedford and Middlesbrough would have seen the runner-up elected as mayor.

Using the Handbook

In 2023 there were elections for a total of 230 local authorities across England. These comprised, 32 Metropolitan boroughs, 46 unitary councils and 152 District councils. In addition, there were four mayoral elections fought under first past the post rules following the abandonment of the Supplementary Vote system used hitherto. For the first time in-person voters were required to show an approved method of personal identification before being issued with a ballot paper.

There were ward boundary changes in 49 authorities. Eight metropolitan boroughs were re-warded (Bolton, Liverpool, Oldham, Stockport, Tameside, Trafford, Wigan and Wolverhampton). Fourteen unitary councils had new boundaries implemented (Bedford, Blackpool, Bracknell Forest, Brighton & Hove, Central Bedfordshire, Derby, Luton, Medway, North Lincolnshire, Slough, Southampton, Stockton-on-Tees, Stoke-on-Trent and Telford & Wrekin). The remaining 27 re-warding councils were shire districts (Amber Valley, Blaby, Charnwood, Chesterfield, Derbyshire Dales, East Hertfordshire, East Staffordshire, Epsom & Ewell, Fenland, Fylde, Gravesham, Guildford, Lancaster, Malvern Hills, Mansfield, Mid Devon, Mid Sussex, Mole Valley, New Forest, North Kesteven, Rushcliffe, South Staffordshire, Stratford on Avon, Tonbridge & Malling, Waverley, West Lancashire and Wychavon).

Election results have generally been taken from figures provided by each local authority's website. The results sections cover respectively the metropolitan boroughs, unitary councils, and district councils. Within these categories councils are organised alphabetically. Local authority ward results are reported in alphabetical order of ward name. The results are followed by maps which are arranged alphabetically. These show the winning party for each ward – in the case of multimember wards a striped pattern is used to identify different winners. The main parties are shown in their standard colours while Independents are in light brown, Residents Associations etc in a darker brown.

The aggregate statistics data include the percentage vote share for a range of parties and Independent candidates. Where more than one councillor is elected then the vote of the best placed candidate for each party is used in calculating total vote. In contests featuring multiple Independent candidates these are grouped according to the number of seats in a ward. In the example of a three-member seat with six Independent candidates, therefore, the votes of the first and fourth placed Independent contribute towards the total vote figure. The change in vote share relates to the 2019 result at the local authority level. The number of candidates presented by each party is also shown as too is the number successfully elected in 2023.

In the main body of the book the results for each ward are listed in alphabetical order within each local authority. The figure in brackets adjacent to the ward name is the local electorate for the 2023 election as provided to us by the local authority. We were unable to obtain on the day electorates from a number of councils and relied instead on other sources. Councils invariably did not produce electorate figures for any uncontested seats and so we are unable to say what proportion of the electorate did not have a vote.

Some scheduled elections were countermanded and the contest held later. Such cases in 2023 are:

South Derbyshire	Hilton	held on 15 June, 2023
Sunderland	Hendon	held on 15 June, 2023
Surrey Heath	Frimley Green	held on 15 June, 2023
Bath & NE Somerset	Paulton	held on 22 June, 2023
Southampton	Coxford	held on 22 June, 2023
Stockton-on-Tees	Hartburn	held on 22 June, 2023
West Lancashire	Rural South	held on 22 June, 2023
Wyre	Warren	held on 22 June, 2023

Details from these postponed elections are included in all aggregate statistics as well as appearing in the main results sections.

Candidates are listed in descending order of vote within each ward. Surname and initials are used; 'Ms.' after a candidate's name indicates a woman; and the symbol '*' indicates that the candidate was a sitting councillor, although not necessarily for the ward contested for in 2023. Two points should be noted. First, it is sometimes difficult to establish from someone's name whether they are a man or a woman. Although lists of forenames are consulted there are some that remain unidentified. It is also difficult sometimes to track of incumbent councillors seeking re-election although Kenneth Leadbeater has helped considerably in making these data as accurate as possible.

'Vote' is the number of electors who supported each candidate and 'Share' the proportion of the total number who cast a valid ballot supporting each candidate. The process of rounding means that shares do not necessarily sum to 100. In the case of multi-member wards where more than one vacancy was filled we have used the vote of each party's best placed candidate in order to calculate total vote and hence party shares. Where a candidate(s) was returned unopposed then either '0' or '0.0' are used in the fields for vote, share and turnout. Below the list of candidates is a further line of data. First, we print the party whose candidate finished top of the poll at the previous election – note: the year may vary according to the particular electoral cycle for that ward. Next, is recorded the percentage turnout. Turnout is the proportion of the electorate that cast valid ballots at the election. In most cases turnout is that given by the local Electoral Administrator and has thus been calculated knowing the number of valid ballot papers issued. In a relatively small number of cases we have ourselves calculated turnout from the available information. The figure to the right of the turnout represents the percentage lead of the winning party over the second placed party rounded to one decimal place. The process of rounding means that in some cases the percentage majority may not be the same as the winning party's vote share minus the second-placed party's share.

Candidates standing for local election use an extensive variety of party labels. These labels, and the abbreviations used in this Handbook, are described below:
